

ANDREW D. YOSHA
VICE PRESIDENT, PROGRAM OPERATIONS
NEW JERSEY SCHOOLS DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY

Andrew D. Yosha serves as the Vice President of Program Operations for the New Jersey Schools Development Authority. He joined the school construction program in July 2001.

Prior to this appointment Mr. Yosha served as Vice President of Program Management and Planning, Vice President of Governance and Compliance and as Managing Director of the divisions of Program Management and Contract Procurement and Administration for the school construction program.

Previous to his work at the SDA, Mr. Yosha was employed by the New York City Department of Buildings for 12 years. At the NYC Department of Buildings, Mr. Yosha served as both Special Counsel to the agency Commissioner and Executive Director for Investigations. He established peer review programs for design professionals and chaired both the Master Plumber License Board and the Master Electrician License Board. Mr. Yosha began his career in school construction with the New York City School Construction Authority where he served as Senior Director of Contract Administration, providing direct oversight for a $2 billion annual capital construction program. In that role, he was also responsible for business development and contractor qualification.

Mr. Yosha graduated from the University of Rochester and has a Juris Doctorate from Boston University School of Law.
